

University-industry research partnerships in the US - BH (S)

February 27th, 2006 - EPFL, Lausanne, Switzerland

INTERNAL SEMINAR:

"University-Industry Research Partnerships in the United States"

Speaker :

Prof. Bronwyn H. Hall - U.C. Berkeley and NBER

Short biography :

Bronwyn H. Hall is Professor in the Graduate School at the University of California at Berkeley and Professor of Economics of Technology and Innovation at the University of Maastricht, Netherlands. She is a Research Associate of the National Bureau of Economic Research and the Institute for Fiscal Studies, London. She is also the founder and partner of TSP International, an econometric software firm. She received a B.A. in physics from Wellesley College in 1966 and a Ph.D. in economics from Stanford University in 1988.

The seminar provided Prof. Bronwyn H. Hall with the opportunity to review the recent US experience with the various types of university-industry research relationships: the reason why they have increased, the evidence on their performance, and the tensions that have emerged.
